✓ PRINCETON - THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

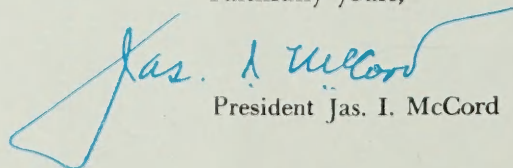

Dear Colleagues:

It is a pleasure to extend warmest greetings to you through the first edition of the Princeton Seminary Alumni News. Last year the students began the publication of a weekly newspaper. It has already proved to be an effective means of communication in the Seminary community. It is our great hope that the Alumni News will become equally effective among the more than 5,000 alumni by interpreting what is going on on the campus, by discussing exciting issues in theological education, and by keeping you informed of what the Princeton Seminary family is doing in the Church throughout the world. We solicit your comments and criticisms as well as your cooperation in furnishing news items. Through the Alumni News we want to maintain an even closer relationship with everyone who has studied in Princeton and on whom Princeton depends for support.

Let me urge you to write us about your work and to send us information about you that we may share with your classmates through the Alumni News. They will be interested in offices to which you have been elected, in programs you are developing, and in every aspect of your ministry. Let these letters, though, be in addition to and not a substitute for frequent visits to the campus. It is always a joy to welcome you back home.

Please schedule some time in Princeton during the Sesquicentennial celebrations in 1962-63. Events and activities will include two full weeks of lectures, when we hope every alumnus will return to the campus. A publications committee has proposed that a history of Princeton Seminary be written, and the promotion and publicity and campaign committees are laying far-reaching plans for a program of development. Princeton's effectiveness in the next generation will depend on the loyal support of her greatest asset, the alumni.

Faithfully yours,

President Jas. I. McCord

New Emphases In Seminary Curriculum

The first stage of a new Seminary curriculum was approved in principle at the fall meeting of the Board of Trustees. Drawn up by the faculty at its September retreat in Ocean City, New Jersey, the curriculum aims at giving the student a grasp of the Biblical languages as early as possible during his academic career; providing an early knowledge of the form and content of the Bible; giving unit credit but not grades for field work; and offering the student the chance to select two fields of study for concentration during his final two years. The program will go into effect in September of 1961, when the Seminary shifts to the semester system in place of the current quarter arrangement.

President James I. McCord stated the aims of the new curriculum, as articulated by the faculty, as follows:

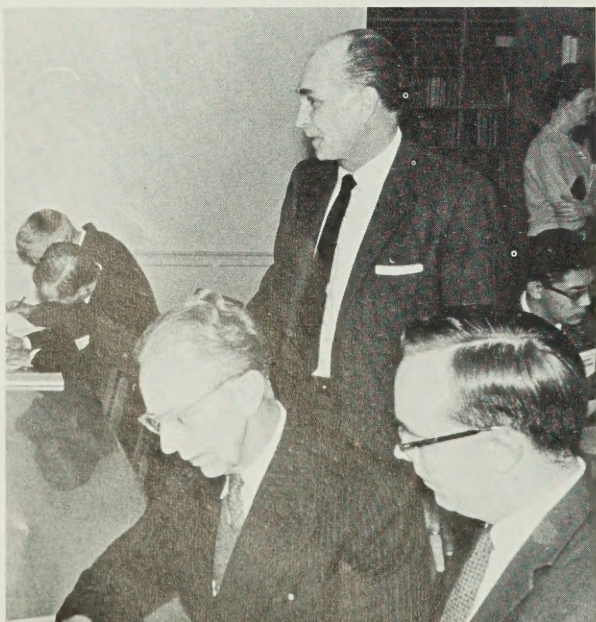

To impart to the student a broad theological culture.

To enable the student to think theologically and to live in the light of sound theological reflection.

To enable the student to continue in the theological enterprise after his time of formal theological study ends.

To impart to the student the indispensable competencies required of the minister.

In pursuit of these broad goals the faculty decided to make 90 semester hours the basic requirement for the B.D. degree. There will be no rigid correlation between class hours and credit hours as the new curriculum goes into effect. A beginning language course, for example, might carry a credit of three hours, while requiring four or even five hours each week in class work. On the other hand an advanced course might meet for one hour only each week, yet still be worth three hours credit because of its heavy content of outside research.

Both Greek and Hebrew will be required for the B.D. degree, and a serious effort will be made to get beginning study of these languages completed by the end of the Junior year. No transcript credit will be given for beginning Greek, but Hebrew studies at the first year level will carry academic credit.

At the end of the Junior year or during the Middler year of study each student will undergo a comprehensive examination in the form and content of Scripture. It is intended that with the elementary language tools and a basic knowledge of the Bible in hand at the end of the first year of Seminary study, the student will have a better foundation for his advanced work.

President McCord also stated that it is the intention of the Seminary, through the revised curriculum, to avoid survey courses and large required lecture classes. In avoiding narrowness the Seminary will attempt to use comprehensive examinations in place of required survey courses, and wherever possible will replace required courses with "restricted area" or "group-elective" courses.

In outline, the curriculum provides that the Junior year be spent in acquiring the basic language tools and completing core courses in each department, as well as gaining insights into the contemporary Church and culture. The Middler year will be devoted to completing these required studies and to advanced work in areas where the student does not intend to specialize. The Senior year would then be free for concentrated work in the two departments selected for specialization.

—Dr. George Buttrick, Visiting Professor of Homiletics, hears comments and questions following his lecture to participants in this year's Alumni Retreat.

—Dr. John Coventry Smith, Executive Secretary of the United Presbyterian Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relations, this year's missions lecturer.

421 Register for 149th Academic Year

A streamlined registration system checked 421 students in all categories into their classes this fall as Princeton Seminary began its 149th academic year. Dr. James Armstrong, Director of Admissions, planned and carried out a program that saw a large portion of the registration task either completed before the students reached the campus or in large sessions under faculty guidance on the first day of the registration period.

Completed registration figures show 274 candidates in residence studying for the B.D. degree, a drop of some 14 per cent from 1959 figures. Reports from other graduate professional schools across the country indicate that Princeton's decline is less than might be expected. Most seminaries have recorded heavier declines, and medical and law schools are also down from a year ago. The Princeton students also include 16 in course for the degree of Master of Religious Education, and 131 graduate and special students. The 29 Th. D. candidates represent an eight per cent increase, only category to show an upward trend this year. Educators credit the low birth rate of the 1939-1941 period, as well as the increasing attraction of graduate work in science, for the decline in registrations as the traditional professional training centers for the ministry, law and medicine.

Eleven students are back on the campus after a year's internship, while ten have suspended campus study for a year to work as interns.

Statistical breakdowns show Princeton has representatives from 48 denominations besides the United Presbyterian Church. Biggest group comes from the Presbyterian Church in the U.S., with 25 students in residence this year. There are 19 students from non-American Presbyterian Churches, and 17 from Reformed Churches in the U.S. and abroad. Four different Baptist denominations are credited with nine students at Princeton, while there are 13 Methodists in course.

The break-down further shows 54 students from 26 foreign nations on the campus, divided as follows: undergraduates—17; Th. M. candidates—18; Th. D. candidates—11. An additional 46 are registered for thesis work but not in classes. Eight non-U.S. students are classified as special students in one category or another.

The new curriculum goes into effect after 17 years experience with the quarter system, which was initiated in 1944 to meet the war-time demand for accelerated academic programs. President McCord listed nine reasons for adopting the semester program:

1. It will symbolize the close relations between the Seminary and the University.
2. A year's program can be more easily planned—fewer courses and fewer exams will be scheduled and the academic year can be planned in bigger blocks.
3. Adopting the semester plan facilitates student exchange with the University.
4. The current proliferation of courses will be avoided.

5. Students will have more time for the assimilation of material.
6. The increased time in each course can be used for research projects that go more deeply into the material than is now possible.
7. A better sabbatical arrangement is possible—professors will be able to take a semester and a summer rather than a summer and a quarter.
8. The change-over provides an opportunity to rethink the entire curriculum and initiate the changes described above.
9. The majority of graduate schools use the semester system—incoming transfers will find it easier to have their previous work credited.

Alumni Roll Call

The 1960 Alumni Roll Call came to a close in November with a total of $10,660.92 contributed by the Seminary's former students. Statistical breakdown shows that 361 individuals, or couples where both are members of Seminary classes, contributed. This represents 7.2 percent of the living alumni of Princeton Seminary. Current alumni giving, however, also includes a major effort towards the completion of the Speer Library Fund, for which many graduates earmarked their gift. The inclusion of this and other causes swells alumni participation in the annual giving program to more than twenty percent.

Letters went into the mail this month to more than five thousand alumni of the Princeton Theological Seminary, asking their participation in the 1961 Alumni Roll Call. Target for the fund drive, which is to be completed by the end of May, is to bring to the Seminary campus for the 1961-62 academic year Dr. Paul Scherer, former Brown Professor of Homiletics at New York's Union Theological Seminary, who will occupy the post of Visiting Professor of Homiletics. Seminary officials hope that alumni will take advantage of the opportunity to return their Roll Call contributions before the end of the current tax year. A full report of the progress of the 1961 Roll Call, along with a list of contributors, will appear in the February issue of Alumni News.

Face of the Future

Seven new faculty members and four new administrative officers joined the staff of the Princeton Theological Seminary for the opening of the fall term, with three additional senior faculty members scheduled to begin teaching with the opening of the 1961 fall semester.

President James I. McCord indicated that the strengthening of the faculty through additional appointments will be one of the major goals of the Sesquicentennial Program, which will mark the 150th anniversary of the Seminary in 1962.

Coming in 1961, Dr. McCord stated, will be Dr. Seward Hiltner, currently the Professor of Pastoral Theology and Chairman of the Field of Religion and Personality at the University of Chicago, who will become Professor of Theology and Personality at the Seminary; Dr. Paul Scherer, who will be Visiting Professor of Homiletics after a year's service in a similar post at Union Seminary in Richmond; and Dr. Charles C. West, who will become Associate Professor of Christian Ethics after five years as Assistant Director of the Ecumenical Institute of the World Council of Churches near Geneva, Switzerland.

Dr. Hiltner holds a University of Chicago Ph.D., and has lectured widely at seminaries, universities and colleges, including the Menninger School of Psychiatry, where he was a visiting professor. In 1958-59 he was a Fulbright Research Fellow at Otago University in New Zealand. His latest book, The Context of Pastoral Counseling, will be published next year. His previous publications include Preface to Pastoral Theology, The Christian Shepherd, The Counselor in Counseling, and Self Understanding. The new Professor of Theology and Personality has also published more than 200 articles in professional and scholarly periodicals. His former positions include that of secretary of the Council for Clinical Training, executive secretary of the Department of Pastoral Service of the Commission on Religion and Health and the Commission on Ministry of Institutions of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, (now the National Council), guest lecturer at Union Theological Seminary (New York), and Yale University Divinity School, as well as service on various boards and committees of the United Presbyterian Church and of Illinois and national mental health societies.

Visiting Professor of Homiletics Paul E. Scherer comes to Princeton after a year as visiting professor at Union Seminary in Richmond. From 1946 to 1960 he was the Brown Professor of Homiletics at Union Seminary in New York. Before taking that chair Dr. Scherer, who is a graduate of the College of Charleston, South Carolina, and of the Lutheran Theological Seminary in Philadelphia, had for 25 years been the pastor of New York's Holy Trinity Church. He has lectured at many schools, and from 1932 to 1945 was the preacher for the Sunday Radio Vespers. He was also an assistant editor of The Interpreter's Bible. Dr. Scherer has published six volumes of sermons.

Dr. Charles C. West, former missionary to China, fraternal worker in German industrial situations, and lecturer to missionaries in training, is regarded as a specialist on the problem of Christianity and Communism. His published volume Communism and the Theologians reflects his experience with the revolution in China as well as his contacts with the Church in East Germany. Before going to China Dr. West did graduate work in the field of Christian philosophy and social ethics, with emphasis on Marxism and Chinese society. While in China he taught briefly in the Peking National University, was a pastor to students and teacher of sociology in the refugee Cheeloo University, and pastor, teacher, and "general all-round missionary" in Shanghai and Nanking. He left China when it became clear that his family, which had already been evacuated, would not be permitted to rejoin him.

On the administrative staff, President McCord has announced the appointments of Homer D. Jones, Jr., Philadelphia business executive, as Director of Development; the Rev. David L. Crawford, from the pastorate of Princeton's Second Presbyterian Church to Secretary of the Seminary with responsibility for alumni relations; the Rev. James E. Andrews, former Secretary for Information of the World Presbyterian Alliance, now Director of Publicity for the Seminary; and the Rev. Mr. Kent Ward Kinney, former assistant pastor of the Faith Presbyterian Church of Baltimore, to be Assistant to the Dean of Field Service.

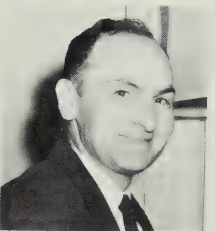

Gerhard von Rad—Professor of Systematic Theology at the University of Heidelberg. Dr. von Rad this year is Visiting Professor of Old Testament at the Seminary. He had previously taught at the University of Leipzig, as an assistant professor, and as full professor at the Universities of Jena and Göttingen. Dr. von Rad has earned degrees from the Universities of Erlangen and Tübingen, and honorary doctorates from the University of Leipzig and the University of Glasgow. The first of his two volumes on The Theology of the Old Testament has been translated into English and will be published soon. Dr. von Rad's Commentary on Genesis is also soon to appear in English.

Dr. J. Robert Nelson—former executive secretary of the Faith and Order Commission of the World Council of Churches and study secretary of the United Student Christian Federation, resigned early this year as Dean of the Vanderbilt Divinity School in connection with the Nashville sit-in campaign. This year he is Princeton's Visiting Professor of Ecumenics. The author of The Realm of Redemption and One Lord, One Church, Dr. Nelson graduated from DePauw University before taking his divinity studies at Yale. His doctorate is from the University of Zurich, and honorary degrees have been awarded by DePauw and Wilberforce University. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, Dr. Nelson was president of the Tennessee Council of Churches in 1959-60.

George A. Buttrick, who is also this year the Harry Emerson Fosdick Visiting Professor at Union Theological Seminary (New York), is Visiting Professor of Homiletics at Princeton for 1960-61. For five years Chairman of the Board of Preachers and Plummer Professor of Christian Morals at Harvard, Dr. Buttrick was pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church of New York for 27 years, serving concurrently as a Union Seminary faculty member. His honorary degrees include awards from Yale and Princeton Universities, and he has gained the S.T.D. degree from Columbia. His books include The Parables of Jesus, Christ and Man's Dilemma and Sermons Preached in a University Church.

Guy H. Ranson, Visiting Professor of Christian Ethics, was last year the occupant of a similar post at Duke University. Previously, Dr. Ranson was associate professor of Christian ethics at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, where he began teaching in 1952 after four years at William Jewell College, where he headed the Department of Philosophy. Awarded doctorates by both Southern Baptist Seminary and Yale University, Dr. Ranson was for a year editor of Review and Expositor, and has held pastorates in Georgia, Kentucky, Connecticut and Virginia.

Philip C. Hammond was in 1959 assistant director of the expedition to Petra, and is a frequent contributor to archaeological and other journals. He has received academic awards or research grants from Yale University, Drew Seminary, the American School of Oriental Research, the American Philosophical Society, and the Wenner-Gren Foundation. Dr. Hammond's doctorate is from Yale; his divinity degree from Drew Seminary.

Alfred E. Bailey, new Instructor in Christian Education, comes to the Seminary from the post of assistant editor of Church School publications for the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, of which he is a minister. Having previously done graduate study at the Seminary, Mr. Bailey will continue working towards his degree in addition to his teaching responsibilities. A graduate of Knox College and the University of Toronto, the Canadian churchman has served pastorates in Dundock, Ontario, and Mount Airy, New Jersey.

William R. Lane comes to Princeton Seminary from Johns Hopkins University, where he taught Hebrew while studying for his doctorate. Mr. Lane will complete his doctoral studies while serving as an Instructor in Old Testament at Princeton. A graduate of Western Seminary, his undergraduate work was done in the Clarkson College of Technology.

Biblical history comes in small pieces as Dr. Charles T. Fritsch exhibits a potsherd recovered from the Sea of Galilee by the summer expedition for which he was chief field archaeologist (right). On the left Dr. Fritsch describes probably patterns of ancient Palestinian trade indicated by the expedition's finds at Galilee and at Caesarea Maritime. With him are Assistant Professor Philip C. Hammond, on the left in both photographs, and John Salmon, graduate student of Old Testament, on the right.

Hunting Herod's Harbor

Princeton Theological Seminary for the first time this year joined in sponsoring an archaeological expedition. Dr. Charles T. Fritsch, Professor of Hebrew and Old Testament Literature, served as chief field archaeologist for the project, the first underwater archaeological expedition ever to work in Palestine.

Jointly sponsored by Princeton Theological Seminary, the America-Israel Society, the Time-Life Corporation and private sources, the expedition was primarily the project of Presbyterian Layman Edwin Link of the First Presbyterian Church of Binghamton, N. Y., inventor of the Link aviation instrument trainer. Link has been interested in underwater archaeology for ten years, working earlier at various Caribbean sites including Port Royal.

Major target of the volunteer divers and crew of the S.S. Sea Diver, constructed for undersea archaeological work by Mr. Link at a cost of half a million dollars, was the ancient port of Caesarea Maritime. Dr. Fritsch joined the expedition at Caesarea in June after the Sea Diver had made the crossing from Puerto Rico to Haifa. It was his third visit to the Near East, following a journey to Jordan in 1954 in preparation for writing a study of the Dead Sea Scrolls entitled "The Qumran Community," and a two-week visit to Israel during the early months of 1959 when he helped make arrangements for the Link expedition.

Built for Caesar Augustus by Herod the Great,

Caesarea was the queen port of the Eastern Mediterranean. It has been little excavated even on land, and the harbor itself is new ground for archaeologists. Stone work from the Herodian harbor can be seen incorporated into piers built in later centuries by the Crusaders and Turks. But it is believed that much of the original statuary that decorated the breakwater, and possibly even the massive colossi that marked the harbor entrance, were dropped into the sea by earthquake action through the centuries. The 1960 expedition set out to explore that possibility, to chart the exact form of the harbor, and to recover artifacts from the harbor that would indicate commercial relations of the period of the harbor's construction and increase general knowledge of the period.

Three weeks of bad weather brought a succession of broken moorings and lost buoys, and a change in the schedule. The expedition moved inland to the Sea of Galilee, already on the docket to be probed after the Caesarea project was completed. Dr. Fritsch says the expedition returned to Haifa and the Caesarea explorations after he returned to Princeton for the fall quarter.

On the inland lake the archaeologists investigated Capernaum, Magdala and Tiberias. A smaller ship, used earlier for work in the Caribbean, was transported overland for this project. Examples of pottery from various periods, ancient lamps, and stone anchors were brought up from the lake bed and dated as belonging to the early Roman period—from about 100 B.C. to 100 A.D.

The expedition had several goals in mind for the Galilee exploration. First, to explore the character of the lake bed itself. Then to determine its depth 2,000 years ago and to ascertain the shore line at that time, revealing whether or not the lake has risen or dropped in the intervening centuries. There was also a desire to investigate Josephus' reference to a Roman-Jewish sea battle on the lake during the first Jewish Revolt. And during all of these operations, to recover material from the lake that would contribute to an understanding of the pattern of life and history in the area.

"The lake bed is hard clay mud, extremely difficult to penetrate," Dr. Fritsch says in outlining how the expedition achieved its objectives. In regard to changes in the level of the lake itself, the Princeton archaeologist reports that positive evidence was found to indicate that the lake has risen since the Biblical period. And definite light has been thrown upon the ancient sea battle and also upon the commercial and sociological conditions of the Roman period in this area.

Some of the artifacts recovered by the expedition will be coming to Princeton Seminary to form part of a permanent collection. Dr. Fritsch also has objects recovered at Beth-el on his 1954 expedition which will go on display at Princeton.

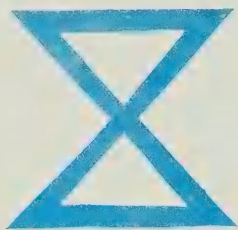

Underwater archaeology is relatively new, with its techniques still very much in the developmental stage. The "Reefdiver" for example, smaller of the two vessels used by the Link expedition, utilizes a water jet method for control in place of conventional steering devices.

In probing for archaeological evidence underwater five methods have been found helpful. First is the use of the magnetometer, which detects metal bodies in the water. "This is helpful," admits Dr. Fritsch, "but you may not be sure whether the instrument is registering a piece of armor or a piece of modern plumbing." A fine-gradation fathometer points to variations in the contour of the lake bed, indicating sunken ships and ancient harbor walls, or maybe just chunks of natural rock. Sooner or later someone has to go down and look—visual search by divers is still the mainstay of underwater work. The water of Galilee was murky, Dr. Fritsch points out, and visual search becomes increasingly difficult below thirty-five feet. Photography has limits in such conditions, handicapping the searchers in the use of one of their main tools. The expedition also used water jet equipment to remove the mud from certain areas in the lake's bottom. Dr. Fritsch warns that this is excellent for such constructions as the foundation of harbor walls and breakwaters, but that it can be hard on ancient pottery. Finally, the expedition used an "air lift," a vacuum cleaner-like apparatus that reveals material on the bottom and brings up to the surface for detailed examination smaller objects that divers might miss.

Still to be answered is one of the main questions of the expedition—what are the exact contours of the original Herodian harbor, and what became of the statuary that adorned the harbor wall? Plans are not yet complete, but a new Link expedition may be heading back to the Mediterranean coast of Israel in coming months to find out.

It takes good eyes, ears and hearts for modern archaeology. Princeton Professor Charles T. Fritsch uses the eyes, and the background of long years of study, to classify a fine piece of ceramic ware recovered by the expedition for which he was head field archaeologist during the summer. At the right, he endures the weekly physical examination required of all expedition personnel. Dr. Fritsch denied that the "witch doctor's" mask was a find of the expedition.

DEAN E. G. HOMRIGHAUSEN took part this summer in the Sixth Biennial Workshop of the Association of Seminary Professor in the Practical Fields, held at Union Seminary in Richmond. Dean Homrighausen chaired one of the sessions of the workshop. The Princeton dean also attended the Faculty Conference of the Council on Theological Education, held at Dubuque, Iowa, and was a lecturer at the Pastors' Institute and later at the Theological Seminary in Campinas Brazil. During his South American trip Dr. Homrighausen also lectured at Buenos Aires' Union Theological Seminary and preached in Brazil and Argentina.

PROFESSOR E. J. JURJI is on Sabbatical this year, teaching in the Department of Philosophy of Madras University in India on a Fulbright award. He and his family recently settled in their temporary home in Madras, where their son David is enrolled as a student at Madras Christian College.

Just announced by John Knox Press is the publication of PROFESSOR HOWARD T. KUIST's Jeremiah and Lamentations. The volume is Number 12 in the Layman's Bible Commentary.

DR. DONALD MACLEOD this summer saw the publication of his latest book, Word and Sacrament, a preface of preaching and worship brought out by Prentice Hall. The volume is a study of the integrity of the office of preaching, of the sources of reformed worship, and of the theological and psychological factors involved in preaching. During the summer Dr. Macleod participated in the "American Preacher Series" of Timothy Eaton Memorial Church of Toronto, a congregation of the United Church of Canada.

DR. BRUCE M. METZGER led discussions on "How do we do our jobs?" for teachers of New Testament and Miss Harriett Prichard for teachers in Field Education at the Dubuque meeting of the Council on Theological Education. In August Dr. Metzger attended the annual meeting of the Studiorium Novi Testamenti Societas at the University of Aarhus in Denmark where he read a paper. He also attended the Eleventh International Congress of Historical Studies held in September in Stockholm.

A Word of Greeting...

To be part of Princeton Seminary's life right now is to be able to feel a pulse beating strongly in every state of the U. S. A., and in seventy-seven countries overseas. These first six months as Secretary of the Seminary have been thrilling in renewed ties and the establishment of a thousand more. In conversation and letter, men and women from sixty-three different graduating classes have noted those fresh and focused memories which are part of their links in loyalty with this campus.

I must share one incident that both quickens and judges my own sense of appreciation for all the windows to God's word and world opened for me by Princeton Theological Seminary. Last year a graduate student from Korea, the Reverend Mr. Yun Ho Ye, was in residence on the campus. In 1961 from Seoul he sent his gift to the Alumni Roll Call, representing the entire account which he had in a Princeton Bank. By air mail in February he wrote that a service fee of the bank had reduced his gift by one dollar, but that one of his Korean friends now on campus would pay the additional dollar since American money cannot be sent directly from Korea. Very shortly thereafter the friend came over from the dormitory with the dollar. I was reluctant to accept, but our Korean friend here said, "Oh, he has already advanced the dollar. He walked from Seoul to my home town to give this dollar to my wife, so it is in our family now." And he added of Mr. Ye, "Princeton Seminary means so much to him, he will, of course, like any alumnus support it with all he has."

Do you wonder that we draw strength day by day from such associations?

With hearty expectations of the visit of many alumni to Princeton during the next fifteen months for the Sesquicentennial Celebrations.

Very cordially yours,

Research Grant Awarded to Dr. Piper

Professor Otto A. Piper will begin this fall the compilation of a new bibliography of New Testament studies, the first such project in a century. A $29,500 grant from the Lilly Endowment, Inc., will finance the research and guarantee publication of the completed bibliography.

Dr. Piper, who occupies the Helen H. P. Manson Chair of New Testament Literature and Exegesis, says the goal of the project is to make available to Biblical scholars a listing of every work in the New Testament field published since the invention of printing.

"The last such bibliography was published one hundred years ago," Dr. Piper stated in explaining the award. "We will expand and update it to cover the period since its publication as well as correct certain listings, and include others missed, in the earlier volume."

Princeton Seminary's New Testament department has made a beginning on the bibliography. The current list covers 150 pages, and is distributed to professors and graduate students at the Seminary for research use. The Lilly grant will make possible a bibliography valuable for historical as well as topical research methods. Dr. Piper emphasizes that the bibliography will be a "complete listing."

A native of Lichte, Germany, Dr. Piper came to Princeton Seminary in 1937 as a guest professor. In 1941 he was named to the New Testament Literature and Exegesis chair. His education was gained in the Universities of Jena, Marburg, Paris and Goettingen. Dr. Piper's major publications include God in History, The Christian Interpretation of Sex, and The Biblical View of Sex and Marriage, as well as other volumes in English, German and Portuguese.

At the current rate of work possible in the Seminary's New Testament department, Dr. Piper estimates that another fifteen years would be necessary to finish the bibliography. The Lilly grant will cut that period to three years. An assistant to Dr. Piper will devote full time to the project, and Dr. Piper will also concentrate on the program after the 1961-62 academic year. Facilities for the research will be established in Speer Library.

Dr. and Mrs. Christy Wilson open farewell gifts from their colleagues at Princeton Seminary during the annual President's Dinner held in December. Included in the presentations were an attache case and a warmer tray for buffet serving. Dr. Wilson retires at the end of the current academic year after twenty years on the Seminary staff, first as Director of Field Work and Associate Professor of Ecumenics, and since 1954 as Dean of Field Service and Professor of Church Vocations.

Dr. Gerard von Rad, visiting professor of Old Testament, hears President McCord express the Seminary's appreciation for his work on the campus during the past year. Dr. von Rad, a member of the theological faculty at the University of Heidelberg, returned to Germany with Mrs. von Rad in April.

Commencement Speakers Named

Two Visiting Lecturers Teaching Third Term

A leading cultural anthropologist and a consultant from the Council on Theological Education are teaching at Princeton Seminary during the third quarter leave of Dr. Samuel Blizzard, Professor of Christianity and Society currently engaged in a research project.

Dr. Solon T. Kimball, Professor of Education in the Department of Social and Philosophical Foundations of the Columbia University Teachers College, and Dr. Hermann N. Morse, special consultant to the United Presbyterian Council on Theological Education, are both offering courses in the area of the Church and Society.

Dr. Morse has been engaged in sociological research since his association with the Institute of Social and Religious Research during the 1920's. He is the author of Social Survey in Town and Country Areas, and jointly with Edmund des Brunner, of the Town and Country Church in the U.S. A graduate of Michigan's Alma College and Union Theological Seminary in New York, he has also studied at Columbia. Before going to his present post Dr. Morse was for ten years general secretary of the Board of National Missions of the United Presbyterian Church and for nineteen years its administrative secretary. He was ordained in 1911, and except for a year spent as secretary of the Bennington County, Vermont, Improvement Association, remained a part of the National Missions Board program before joining the staff of the Council on Theological Education.

Formerly president of the Society for Applied Anthropology, Dr. Solon Kimball has published three books on cultural anthropology, one of them in two volumes. He is the co-author of a fourth publication and this year prepared the introduction to the English translation of Gennep's Rites of Passage.

The holder of degrees from Kansas State College and Harvard, Dr. Kimball has done extensive research in his field. From 1942 to 1945 he headed the Community Organization section of the War Relocation Authority, working with Americans of Japanese ancestry who were moved away from the Pacific coast. Socio-economic surveys on the Navajo Indian Reservation, done for the Departments of Agriculture and Interior, were also under his direction. Dr. Kimball was for a year a UNESCO technical consultant on Dean Samuel Miller of the Harvard Divinity School will deliver the commencement address and Seminary Trustee David B. Watermulder (1945), pastor of the Oak Park, Ill., First Presbyterian Church, the baccalaureate sermon at Princeton Seminary's 149th Annual Commencement June 4 through 6, President James I. McCord has announced.

Commencement activities get underway at 4:00 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, June 4, with the baccalaureate service in Miller Chapel. On Monday, June 5, at the same hour, President and Mrs. McCord will hold a reception at Springdale in honor of the graduates.

The Class of 1961 will be welcomed into the Princeton Seminary Alumni Association at the annual Alumni Banquet, scheduled for 6:15 p.m., June 5, in the Campus Center.

The 149th Annual Commencement will begin with the traditional academic procession at 10:30 a.m., Tuesday, June 6, in the University Chapel. Commencement Speaker Dean Miller was pastor of the Old Cambridge Baptist Church near the Harvard campus for twenty years before becoming dean of Harvard's Divinity School in 1956. He has also served as adjunct professor of the philosophy of religion at Andover-Newton Theological School and as a lecturer in pastoral theology at Harvard. He is the author of The Great Realities, The Life of the Church, and The Life of the Soul.

Watermulder became pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Hightstown, N.J., upon his being graduated from Princeton Seminary. He also served as pastor of the Watertown, N.Y., First Presbyterian Church, and in 1953 was a student at Oxford University. He has been in his present pastorate since 1955.

Community and Education to the Brazilian Ministry of Education. Before taking his current chair at Teachers College he had been Associate Professor of Sociology and Anthropology at Michigan State College and Professor and head of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Alabama University.

Dr. Kimball has undertaken research projects in Massachusetts as part of the "Yankee City" program; in Western Ireland; on American Indian reservations; at Japanese-American relocation centers; in rural Michigan communities; in Alabama, where he directed the Talledega community self-survey; and with the Air Force, where he was co-director of a project dealing with human relations factors in maintenance operations.

Institute of Theology

Scheduled July 10-20

Hiltner

Cleland

Haroutunian

Gallup

Sittler

Fourteen outstanding Churchmen will come to the Princeton Seminary campus July 10-20 to serve on the faculty of the 1961 Princeton Institute of Theology. The Institute this year will center on the theme "The New Man in the New Age."

Also taking part as faculty members will be six members of the Seminary's regular faculty. Seminary Secretary David L. Crawford (1947), is chairman of the Institute Committee, succeeding Dr. J. Christy Wilson (1919), Dean of Field Service, who organized the first Princeton Institute of Theology in 1941. Directing the Institute this year is Kent Kinney (1959), assistant to the Dean of Field Service.

Bible studies during the first week of the Institute of Theology will be conducted by Dr. Donald G. Miller of Union Theological Seminary in Richmond. Dr. Joseph Haroutunian, McCormick Seminary professor of systematic theology, will be the daily convocation speaker. During the second week Dr. Joseph Sittler, professor of systematic theology at the University of Chicago Federated Theological Faculty, will be the convocation speaker with Ernest Campbell (1949), pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of York, Pennsylvania, conducting the Bible Study Hour.

The evening lecture series during the Institute's first week includes President James I. McCord; John W. Meister, Fort Wayne, Indiana, First Presbyterian Church pastor; Dr. Ashley Montagu, professor of anthropology at Princeton University; Dr. George Gallup of Princeton, famed for his measurements of public attitudes; and Dr. Paul Lehmann, Harvard Divinity School professor of theology. In the evening preaching series during the second week of the Institute the preachers will be Dr. Frederick B. Speakman (1945), pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh; Duke University Dean of the Chapel James T. Cleland; and Wallace E. Fisher, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity, Lancaster, Pa.

Twelve elective courses will be offered over the two-week span by the following members of the Institute faculty: Dr. Kenneth G. Neigh, general secretary of the United Presbyterian Board of National Missions; Princeton Seminary Philosophy Professor John H. Hick; Dr. James H. Smylie, director of student studies and a member of the History Department faculty at the Seminary; Dr. Guy H. Ranson, visiting professor of Christian ethics at Princeton this year and a former professor of the Southern Baptist Seminary in Louisville; Dr. David Cairns, professor of practical theology at Christ College, Aberdeen University; Dr. Seward Hiltner, coming to Princeton Seminary as professor of theology and personality; Dr. James Cleland, also on the evening program at the Institute; and Dr. John W. Bachman, professor of practical theology and director of the Audio-Visual Program at New York's Union Theological Seminary.

Registration fees for the Institute are unchanged this year, $5.00 per person or $7.50 for each couple. Board, room and tuition charges have been set at $55.00 for each adult and $25.00 for children between three and twelve.

Alumnus Heads Canadian Presbyterians

A Scots-born graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary is serving this year as moderator of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, the first man in the modern history of that Church to receive the honor of the moderator's chair who was a graduate of a seminary outside of Canada.

Principal Robert Lennox of Presbyterian College, Montreal, who with his election to the moderatorship gained the title "Right Reverend" during his year of office and "Very Reverend" for life, was graduated from Princeton with the degree of Bachelor of Theology in 1937.

His ministry demonstrates other links between American and Canadian Presbyterianism. Upon graduation the young Canadian was ordained and installed as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Hamilton Square, New Jersey, where he served for eight years. From Hamilton Square he was called to Presbyterian College, first as sessional lecturer in 1945, then the following year to the chair of Old Testament. In 1948 he was appointed principal. The Lennox's three daughters were all born in Trenton, New Jersey. Mrs. Lennox is the former Gwendolyn Ardell of near Montreal.

Born near Glasgow, Scotland, at Bell's Hill, Moderator Lennox's life is a miniature history of English-speaking Presbyterianism. He went to Northern Ireland as a boy when his family left Scotland. When he was fifteen the Lennox family crossed the Atlantic to settle in Ottawa, where his mother still resides in the home established at that time. His years at Princeton and the duties of his moderatorial year have taken him to most of the other centers where Scots Presbyterianism has spread. He revisited Scotland last fall, representing the Presbyterian Church of Canada at celebrations marking the Fourth Centenary of the reformation of Moderator Robert Lennox (1937), with President McCord and the Rev. W. Glen Harris (1930), at the meeting of the North American Area Council of the World Presbyterian Alliance. Harris, then serving as moderator of New Brunswick, officiated at the ordination of Lennox and his installation as Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Hamilton Square, N. J., the Canadian moderator's first charge.

Barrois Installed As Full Professor

Dr. Georges A. Barrois was installed as Princeton Seminary's first Professor of the History and Theology of the Medieval Church in ceremonies April 6 in Miller Chapel. In his installation address the new full professor called for the integration of thought and life into the divine order in a way dreamed of but not fully attained during the Middle Ages.

Dr. Barrois became an assistant professor at Princeton in 1947, and an associate professor in 1950. He had been a member of the faculty as a lecturer since 1942, when he was awarded the Th.M. degree by the Seminary. He earlier received the S.T.D. degree from the Dominican College of Theology at Tournai, Belgium, and in 1932 the Prolyta in Sacred Scripture from the Vatican. Professor Barrois had taught archaeology in both Palestine and France before coming to the United States, and has published several volumes in that field.

the Church of Scotland. And he has made moderatorial visits to British Guiana, the Theological College at Kingston, Jamaica, and to Canadian universities from Winnipeg to Vancouver, where he held consultations with Canadian Presbyterians on the university staffs.

Holder of both the B.A. and M.A. degrees from McGill University, Principal Lennox went on to take a Ph.D. in oriental studies at Princeton University after completing his seminary course. While having a

Alumni Meetings On the Increase

From California to Ireland, Princeton Seminary alumni are meeting in increasing numbers to renew friendships and hear fresh reports from the campus. During recent months the following have been among alumni groups holding meetings.

CALIFORNIA

In a flying visit to the West Coast, President James I. McCord and David L. Crawford, Secretary of the Seminary, met with Princetonians in the Bay Area and in Los Angeles. The First Presbyterian Church of Berkely, Calif., with Robert B. Munger (1936), pastor and host, welcomed forty-six alumni and wives for luncheon on December 6. That same evening in the Mona Lisa Restaurant in Los Angeles sixty-five Princetonians and wives greeted President McCord on his first visit to Southern California. Chairman of the meeting, held on his birthday, was W. Clarence Wright (1926).

MICHIGAN

The Annual Michigan Alumni meeting on February 13 began with a late afternoon theological discussion led by President McCord. Sixty-eight alumni, (plus accompanying wives,) attended the dinner following in Detroit's First Presbyterian Church with Allan M. Frew (1935), pastor of the Church and a Trustee of the Seminary, as host. Michigan Alumni Association President H. Paul Sloan (1937), was master of ceremonies. Arnold O. Leverenz (1959) and his wife Ann sang for fellow alumni. Named new president of the state association was W. Glen Harris (1930).

MISSOURI

From 9:30 p.m., until after midnight alumni from fourteen different states met on February 14 for a Princeton Reunion in St. Louis' Hotel Hilton. Joining Seminary Secretary David L. Crawford and Trustee George E. Sweazey (1930), in welcoming thirty-five of the delegates to the National Council of Church's Christian Education Assembly were Professor D. Campbell Wyckoff and Harriet C. Prichard (1954), of the Seminary's Christian Education faculty.

TEXAS

Just prior to Easter President McCord met with Alumni in Houston. Chairing the arrangements for the Lone Star state, where one hundred and seven Princeton Seminary men and women are serving, was Daniel Arthur Baker (Th.M., 1947).

NEW YORK

A. Kenneth Magner Jr., (1949), was named the new president of the Greater New York Alumni Association at an April 17 meeting at the Interchurch Center on Riverside Drive. Retiring President Melvin R. Campbell (1936), presided over a program including group discussion on contemporary theological trends led by Dr. McCord. Also elected at the luncheon meeting were Vice President John K. Highberger (1930), Secretary Virginia Stieb-Hales (1957), and Treasurer Olin M. Jones (1912).

IRELAND

The Rt. Rev. Dr. Austin Fulton, Moderator of the Irish General Assembly and a member of the Class of 1925, is serving this year as president of the Princeton Seminary Alumni Association in Ireland, succeeding the Rev. J. G. Leitch, M.A. Re-elected to the post of secretary is the Rev. J. W. Bruce of Belfast. President Emeritus John A. Mackay was guest of honor at a second meeting of the Irish Princetonians, held last fall in Belfast. After speeches by the Very Rev. Dr. J. C. Breakey (1916), and the Rev. Eric Nelson (1954), on the Seminary in the past and in the present, Dr. Mackay addressed the thirty-five alumni attending the banquet. He later spoke at the United Missionary Rally in Belfast.

Fresh Ideas—New Challenges

"Zwingli taught a doctrine of the real presence based on the believer, not on the bread. Therefore the Church, the faithful, is essential to the Lord's Supper and an individual comprehension of the eucharist is impossible." Dr. Jacques Courvoisier, professor of church history at the University of Geneva and a former rector of the university, added that avoidance of the Lord's Supper is the height of unbelief according to Zwingli, founder of the reformation in Switzerland.

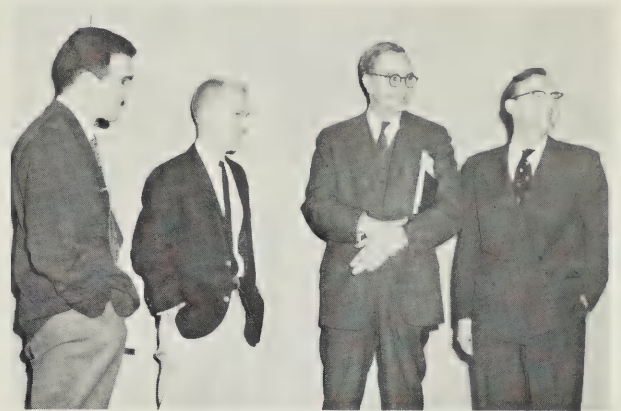

Delivering the 1961 Annie Kinkead Warfield Lectures on the subject "The Theology of Huldrych Zwingli," the Swiss theologian concentrated on the topics of "The Meaning of the Word of God," "The Christological Axis," "The Church and the Ministry," "The Sacraments," and "Church and State," after an introductory lecture on Zwingli's life.

Zwingli's emphasis upon corporateness was not limited to his ideas on the Lord's Supper, Courvoisier pointed out. Working in the context of Swiss nationalism, Zwingli was concerned with the whole people, and with their relationship to both Church and the political body. His question was not Luther's "How shall I be saved?", but rather, "How shall my people be saved?"

Dr. Courvoisier denied that Zwingli can be accused of confusing the functions of the Church and the state. In reformation, he said, the magistrate acts in the vacuum left by the hierarchy, acting as a member of the Church who holds a position of great responsibility. Zwingli's political theory, based on the Zurich situation, provided a base for the structure later erected in Geneva by Calvin, who had both the Zwinglian precedent and more time in which to work.

"The statement 'Lord, I believe' must be followed by 'help Thou mine unbelief' if man is to avoid bad faith," New York University Philosophy Professor William Barrett told his "Challenge to the Church" Lecture audience at Princeton Seminary during the second term. Author of a leading study of existentialism, Barrett described bad faith as the act of taking some part of the self as a fixed certainty. Faith must always imply an uncertainty about both the believer and the object of faith, what Kierkegaard calls "the objective uncertainly" of faith.

Not only Calvin, but Bullinger and Bucer incorporated Zwinglian concepts into their reformation thought, Dr. Courvoisier stated, especially his views on the centrality of Scripture. For the early Swiss reformer, the speaker continued, there was an identity between the word of God and Jesus Christ.

Having studied at the Universities of Geneva, Paris, Tubingen and Strasbourg, Dr. Courvoisier took his doctorate at Geneva. He served pastorates in Cannes, Paris, the Canton of Vaud (Switzerland) and Geneva before being named Church history professor at Geneva University in 1939. He is chairman of the Genevan Consistory, the body most closely resembling the presbytery, and served during the Second World War as chairman of the Commission for Chaplaincy Service to Prisoners of War. He is also chairman of the board of directors for the Ecumenical Institute at Bossey.

Choir Plans Alaskan Tour

The Princeton Seminary Choir leaves the campus June 6 for an eight-week tour reaching into Alaska, Dr. David Hugh Jones, professor of music and director of the choir, has announced. Thirteen Northern and Northwestern states, the provinces of Alberta and British Columbia and the Yukon Territory of Canada will also hear the 1961 edition of the choir.

Singing its usual twice-daily and three-to-four-times-a-Sunday schedule, the choir will appear before more than 100 groups ranging from congregations at worship to radio and luncheon club audiences. Schools, hospitals and military installations are also on the itinerary.

The 1961 touring choir is composed of sixteen voices, representing an aggregate of seventeen colleges and seminaries. The singers will travel in four cars and station wagons. Repertoire this summer includes choral works by Palestrina, Lotti, Buxtehude, Bach, Handel, Haydn and Mendelssohn, and compositions by contemporary European and American composers. A considerable group of traditional songs rounds out the program.

Under Dr. Jones' leadership for the past twenty-seven years, the choir since 1946 has covered all fifty states and the provinces of Canada except Newfoundland, and has sung in Cuba, Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama, Colombia, Puerto Rico, Haiti, the Dominican Republic and Japan and Korea.

Alumnus Heads (from p. 5)

graduate in the moderator's chair of the Canadian Presbyterian Church is an unusual honor for Princeton, the presence of Canadian students is far from exceptional on the campus. Seven are now enrolled, most coming from Principal Lennox's college. He does not deny having some influence on their decision to come here.

"Our men go to other American schools, though," he points out. "Or to Scotland and the continent. We concentrate on B.D. work in our own college, preparing men for the parish ministry. By far the greatest proportion of those who come to the U.S. for theological studies are seeking specialized training. Most of them do a year's work, taking the Th.M., with a lesser number going on to the doctorate. A large number of the latter come to Princeton. In my own case, I did a year at our own theological college before coming to Princeton."

Besides his teaching and administrative duties at Presbyterian College, the moderator has served fifteen years on the Committee on Articles of Faith of his Church, which issued the notable statement on Church and Nation. He holds a post on the Board of Education of the General Assembly, the board responsible for considering and receiving ministers, and he is a member of the Committee on Laity of the Board of Canadian Education.

And their names were not found written in the book...

When the Alumni News left port for the maiden voyage last issue she went sailing without all her cargo. Scores of Princeton men and women who contributed to the Alumni Roll Call were omitted in our grateful recognition. We spotted this right here on campus as the issue was prepared for mailing. A number of the faculty "coughed quietly" and said: "Now, of course it doesn't bother me that my name was left out, but if mine, perhaps some others..." Indeed a sample of the omissions would read like a "Who's Who" of Princeton's most loyal alumni. Even the name of the man whose heart and energies were behind recent alumni giving, Joseph MacCarroll (1935), was not recorded. It seems that different lists were kept according to varying times of contribution, and it was not known that the list given was therefore not complete. Those who gave to the Speer Library campaign have a separate and honored record. Accept our humble apologies for this faux pas... and a particular word of gratitude to those who in writing to note the omission were so thoughtful as to venture some encouraging words of appreciation for issue Number One.

McCabe Named Alumni Trustee

Coe College President Joseph E. McCabe (1943), was named Alumni Trustee in mail balloting held before the April meeting of the Board. Holder of both the Th.B. and Th.M. degrees from Princeton Seminary, McCabe served pastorates in Lambertville, New Jersey and Chestnut Hill, Pennsylvania, before being called to Coe College. While in New Jersey he was a member of the Judges Committee on Juvenile Delinquency. He holds an Ohio State University degree of Master of Arts and a Ph.D. from the University of Edinburgh. His undergraduate work was taken at Muskingum College, where President McCabe was assistant dean of men and admissions counsellor before beginning his theological education. He is a former moderator of the Presbytery of New Brunswick.

The new Alumni Trustee is the author of "The Power of God in a Parish Program." During World War Two he was a Navy chaplain. Honorary degrees have been bestowed upon him by both Muskingum and Monmouth Colleges.

A Salute of Gratitude

Bryant M. Kirkland, of the Class of 1938, has directed many of his energies to the growth and good of Princeton Seminary. As the campaign for the Robert E. Speer Library is now concluded, we thank him again for the zest and concern which he invested as Chairman. Generations of students, pastors, and professors will be grateful that so excellent a library is housed in so admirable a building.

Benham Alumni Aid Former Club Cook

Benham Club alumni, together with the Seminary, recently raised $2,900 to clear the mortgage on the home of Walter Davis, Campus Center cook and former Benham Club cook, who was permanently disabled following a 1955 accident in the kitchen. The "paid-up" mortgage was presented to Davis the day before Christmas in his neighboring Dutch Neck home.

Faculty Notes

Dr. Edward C. A. Dowey, professor of the history of Christian doctrine, has been awarded a grant by the American Association of Theological Schools for a year's study abroad. Professor Dowey is planning to spend the year in Zurich, doing research on Swiss Reformer Heinrich Bullinger.

Dowey, who was one of this year's Moore Lecturers at San Francisco Theological Seminary, hopes to expand the work of his European Sabbatical into a book at a future date.

Two Princeton Seminary faculty members have been active in addressing archaeological groups in recent months. Dr. Charles T. Fritsch (1935), professor of Hebrew and Old Testament Literature, spoke on "Underwater Archaeology in Israel" before the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis at the Society's annual meeting in New York this winter, and on the same topic at a Cleveland, Ohio, meeting of the American Archaeological Society. In Cleveland he was the guest of Dr. George Crile, Jr., of Cleveland's Crile Clinic. Dr. and Mrs. Crile participated last summer in the underwater expedition in Israel for which Dr. Fritsch was head field archaeologist. The expedition itself was a feature article in a May issue of Life magazine. Dr. Fritsch spoke in April on the campuses of two colleges, Jamestown and Buena Vista, lecturing on the Dead Sea Scrolls and his 1960 expedition. Dr. Phillip C. Hammond, assistant professor Old Testament, addressed the annual meeting of the Archaeological Institute of America at Hartford, Conn., speaking on "The Crusader Fort on El-Habis at Petra." Dr. Hammond was assistant director of the 1959 Petra expedition.

Dean E. G. Homrighausen (1924), has been named to the Board of Directors of the Japanese International Christian University.

Born to Dr. and Mrs. Donald MacLeod, a daughter, Leslie Eliner, on April 18.

Dr. Donald MacLeod, associate professor of homiletics, will be the preacher at the Annual Assembly at Chautauqua Lake, New York, for the week July 9 to 14, 1961. Dr. MacLeod has also been invited to deliver the Alumni Lectures on Preaching at Crozer Theological Seminary, October 30 to November 1, 1961.

Dr. Bruce M. Metzger's latest book is an Index to Periodical Literature on the Apostle Paul, published by E. J. Brill of Leiden and handled in the United States by Eerdmans. The volume is the first of several scheduled to appear in a new monograph series titled New Testament Tools and Studies. Dr. Metzger is the editor of the series.
